State Senator Michael O’Pake recently made a trip to Alvernia University. The senator’s visit was in conjunction with the SRYI Career Exploration Workshop, taking place on Monday’s. O’Pake talked to the South Reading

Participants about the election process, the cost of running for office, and what occurs after you are elected. He also talked about the voting process in the Senate, discussing with the participants what happens when a bill comes up for vote in the Senate. The Senator event allowed the SRYI participants to “vote” on their own bill. The 53 participants were extremely excited to meet and talk to the Senator. They had many questions for him.
